

Computer Monitors Spice Up Sales for Gap Stores in Europe

Custom monitor banks add to the clean contemporary look for Gap stores.

Computer monitors and plasma screens were easily grouped together using sleek covers by Weiss Sheet Metal. Flat screens were linked in a pyramid configuration, while straight banks of computers were used over the registers. City scenes from other locations were shown, giving Gap a more "universal" appeal.

Designing prototypes as the job progressed, Weiss Sheet Metal created elaborate connections to bank the heavy screens together and suspend them from the ceiling. Ventilation was also an important part of the project, requiring many vents and perforations.
